

The Future of Healthcare is Here

Be part of it

SUPPORTED BY EXPERIENCED PARTNERS

Four public sector partners bring experience, expertise and a dedication to BioQuarter's success.

To Revolutionise Health and Wellbeing

Edinburgh BioQuarter is a leading global destination for healthcare delivery, groundbreaking medical research and life sciences innovation and entrepreneurship.

The 100 acre BioQuarter campus - located 3 miles from the city centre of Edinburgh – will grow significantly over the next 10 years into the largest single-site development in Scotland for health and life sciences innovation.

Built for Innovation

Across a campus built for collaboration, 7,500 people – from academics to entrepreneurs, researchers to frontline health professionals – are fostering opportunities for innovation, ultimately leading to improved patient care and revolutionary new treatments.

CURRENT BIOQUARTER OCCUPIERS INCLUDE:

- NHS Lothian's Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh Teaching Hospital which has over one million patient interactions every year
- NHS Lothian's Royal Hospital for Children and Young People, Edinburgh which has over 100,000 paediatric outpatient appointments each year
- The University of Edinburgh's Medical Teaching School is ranked inside the world's top 20 (QS rankings 2019) places to study medicine and life sciences
- The University of Edinburgh's Queen's Medical Research Institute, with its four strategic research Centres, addressing major disease challenges
- The University of Edinburgh's MRC Centre for Regenerative Medicine and Centre for Tissue Repair (2020), boasting the largest concentration of stem cell scientists in Europe
- Scottish Enterprise's NINE - Life Sciences Innovation Centre, where life sciences businesses connect and thrive.

BioQuarter by Numbers

An Inspiring Place to Live and Work

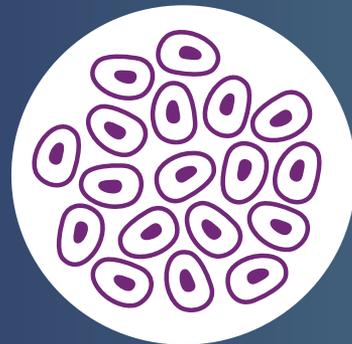

With a global reputation for innovation in life sciences and medicine, Edinburgh presents one of the most attractive locations to live and work in the UK. Scotland's capital has recently been named the top city for inward investment by global consultancy Arcadis, it boasts a roll call of four universities with 15,000 new graduates every year and is home to the largest arts festival in the world.

When it comes to inward investment, Scotland is second only to London in the UK for attracting venture finance for life sciences companies.
